Grow is a tribute to the home-cultivation of vegetables in urban spaces. The three-part garden tool set is especially suited for working with small pots.

The Swiss eat an average of 85 kilogrammes of vegetables a year. About half of it is imported and by the time it is sold in the shops, it's already made a very long journey.

A balcony garden in the city can provide as much fresh fruit and veg as in the countryside.

The tool set, comprising a trowel, a dibber, and a small hand cultivator can be used in a variety of ways due to the tools' simplified shapes and, after the work is done, they can be hung up in a bundle.
